

Harold B. Lee Library Gifts Policy

January 2003

The Library gratefully accepts donations of all kinds - monetary gifts as well as books, journals, periodicals, manuscripts, and archival materials - in order to improve its collections. Because processing gifts-in-kind entails significant labor and related costs, the Library accepts only those gifts-in-kind that support the mission of the university. If a gift does not fulfill the collection development guidelines, the Library may not accept the gift.

The Library reserves the right to dispose of any item. Some donated materials may be sold, discarded, or offered to other libraries or charitable organizations.